Make Sure You Never Wear Jewellery To The Airport

It is understandable why people dress up when it comes to going to the airport, after all they are getting on a plane with loads of people and some people out there like to look their best when it comes to these kinds of situations. However is it really necessary to put on all of that silver jewellery when it comes to the airport and even more importantly, would it be better off and waiting until you arrive n holiday.

Security

before you leave with all of your best jewellery on make sure you know about security, it is a lot tighter in some place rather than others, the US for example are very tight on all of their security. They will often ask people to take off all of that turquoise jewellery because it can interfere with the systems in place and will make the detector go off. you will have to do this when you land to which means a bit of hassle on both ends, you need to know this.

Being Comfortable

being comfortable on a flight, especially a long one is very important indeed and are you actually going to be comfortable in all of your best clothes and items, I seriously doubt it. Take the silver brooches off and make sure you can rest properly. if you are in your best jewellery there is no way at all you are going to get comfy. you wouldnt sleep in jewellery at home so why do it on the plane?

one a final note you always need to be aware of the people around you. if you are wearing the most expensive jewellery that you own then you are a target for thieves so make sure that you never parade around too publicly with things such as thi.

of course the decision on something like this is yours to make just make sure you do what is right.
