The Four Different Types of Womens watches

These days most young women don't usually wear wristwatches. This is because cellphones, iPods and iPads have a time display built in, which means that you don't need another device for telling the time. However, there is something about an elegant looking watch which will make them popular accessories for a long time yet.

There are four different types of ladies watches: jewelry, sport, classic and fashion.

Ladies sport watches usually come in a pastel colors like pink or pastel and include timers, heat monitors, alarms and other sports functions. Ladies sports watches are usually waterproof. Buy one of these if you do a lot of jogging or running or watersports.

Jewellery watches tend to look like bracelets and are made from precious metals like platinum or gold. They sometimes have precious stones embedded in them like diamonds. These pieces are more about elegance and expensive looks than about functionality. Get a jewelry watch to accessorize your evening wear. Most women require one good quality jewellery watch to wear on special occasions. Bulova womens watches are a perfect example of elegant jewelry watches.

Womens fashion watches are designed to go with the latest fashion trends and can come in a variety of styles, and are usually promoted by actresses and other celebrities. Classic ladies wrist watches are the old fashioned or antique looking watches which are traditional.

Choosing a lady's watch for the special woman in your life is really about knowing her lifestyle. Women who are particular about how they look tend to prefer fashion or jewelry watches. If she is into fitness or sport then a ladies sport watch would be ideal. Conservatively dressed women usually prefer to wear classic watches.

Prices depend on the type of brand, and the functions of the watch. The more expensive jewellery watches can range into the hundreds or even thousands. The exact price will vary according to the brands, functions and quality.
