Tips for Choosing the Ideal 9Ct Gold Bracelet

Whether you are buying a gold charm online or in a retail shop, choosing the right bracelet for women can be a bit confusing. This guide offers basic information about the different types of bracelets available.

First of all, they can be made of yellow, white and red (also called pink or rose) gold. These are all alloys of gold. White gold is very modern while many women still prefer the traditional yellow gold bracelets. Red gold isn't as common as the other kinds but it can also be very beautiful and popular with women who like warm colors like red and orange.

Bracelets can also have gemstones set in it. Diamond bracelets are a favorite of wealthy women. It has a classic appeal to it. Colored precious gems such as rubies, emeralds and sapphires set in a bracelet are also good. Think of what colors the person you are planning to give it to likes.

Generally, the colors of a ladies accessories match or complement her clothing colors. For example, if a woman you know hates red and never wears that color because it is too loud, she may prefer a sapphire bracelet over a ruby one.

While real diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires are very pricey, there are also some very good semiprecious gems that are much more affordable. These gems come in many colors, shapes and sizes and you are sure to find a bracelet that is pleasing and has the right colors in it.

If you are thinking of purchasing a 9ct gold bracelet as a birthday gift, you may want to look in a calendar to see what is her birthstone is. Traditionally, each month has a particular gem assigned to it and many women would love to get a birthstone gold bracelet.

One very popular type of bracelet is the charm bracelet. If you know what her favorite things are, you can purchase charms based on your knowledge. For example, there are shoe charms for those who love shoe shopping, dolphin charms for ocean lovers, guitar charms for musicians, etc. Designing the charm bracelet yourself also shows your thoughtfulness and will be much appreciated.

Whatever 9ct gold bracelet you do choose, try to find a good match for the person you give it to. Modern women will want a sleek, minimalist design. Older women may prefer traditional pieces like Victorian jewelry. The sporty, athletic type may prefer more solid pieces rather than a delicate gold filigree bracelet that is made of thin wires.
