Womens Fashion - Jewellery Tips For 2011

If you're someone who loves fashion and dressing well but finds the whole thing a little bit confusing, then you're not alone. Fashion changes so fast it can be hard to keep up. To help you out, in the realm of jewellery at least, we've put together a little guide to the top trends for 2011. Mismatched bracelets are going to be really big, which is great as it means you can largely just wear things you've previously bought and don't have to worry about what goes with what.

Long earrings are also going to be very big. Simply put, the bigger the better, really. Earrings that dangle along or just skim above your shoulders are really popular right now, which gives you some great scope to make a fashion statement with your jewellery. Big hoop earrings are also popular. These styles of earrings are especially good if they come with lots of interesting, eye-catching details such as the inclusion of gems to catch the light or perhaps a couple of crystals.

The cuff watch is also going to be a big 2011 women's jewellery trend. They are available in a whole range of colors and designs, which means you have loads of options to help your accessory stand out, particularly if you go for bright colors and intricate patterns. Cuff watches come with a thick band of fabric for a strap, making them an idea to make a bold statement and they just slide on like a bracelet. Alternatively, you could wear a metal watch with a thin silver or gold strap.

Another great excuse to have a rummage through your closet for some great items lies in our next big trend, the vintage-style pendant necklace. You could go for a fabric flower pendant on a long string of beads to create a pretty, feminine look. Alternatively, you could choose from a whole range of pendants made out of metal or plastic. This is a great way to add detail to any outfit and the large pendant is sure to help you stand out.

Last on our list of top women's jewellery trends is the ever-trusty crystal. Some jewellery is always popular as it's such a classic, and the crystal is definitely one of those items as it's back again for 2011. Little, sparkling gems such as Swarovski crystals are especially popular on jewellery items such as rings and earrings. The detail really makes all the difference in helping your accessories stand out while remaining a true classic that will be popular for years to come.
